REDS PAID FOR FIRING

Marines Hurl Back Twin Red Attacks

By WENDELL MERICK
SEOUL, Korea, Mar. 19 (UP)—American Marines hurled back twin Chinese attacks north and south of Bunker Hill today, killing or wounding nearly half the attacking Reds.
One Chinese company rammed through to the Marines' main western front defense line north of Seoul before the Leathernecks dropped it to bits with concentrated artillery and mortar fire. This company, about 200 men, struck southwest of Bunker Hill behind a barrage of 1,900 rounds of artillery and mortar fire. The Chinese overran the flank of a Marine unit and pushed on to the main line.
Marine big guns forced the Reds to withdraw, leaving 25 Chinese counted killed on the battlefield. Marine officers estimated that another 50 Reds were killed and 65 were wounded.
At the same time, a second Chinese company attacked a forward position northeast of Bunker Hill. They closed to within hand-grenade range of Marine outpost bunkers and fought a close range duel of machineguns, rifles and grenades for one hour and 30 minutes.
The Chinese withdrew, leaving nine dead.
The attack began when a Marine patrol sighted the forward assault waves. It ended with artillery and machinegun fire chasing the battered Red force across the rain-swept wastes of no-man's-land.
The patrol warned outlying Marine outposts as the Red company split into two forces to strike at an outpost and main line fortifications.
Pfc. William W. Weitzel of Sinking Springs, Pa., a member of the patrol said, "The goons followed us in, firing burp guns and throwing grenades. We killed a lot of them. We could hear their wounded moaning beyond the wire."
Marine Correspondent Sgt. Jim Coleman, of St. Louis, Mo., said one Marine, on the battlefield, UN troops repulsed 10 minor probing attacks. The largest, mounted by a platoon-sized North Korean force, was thrown back in the Nam River sector of the eastern front.

Basement Can Aid In Atom Blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. Mar. 19 (UP)—An American family crouched in an inexpensive basement shelter can survive an atomic blast even though the explosion crushes their home like a giant's hand.
An announcement by the Federal Civil Defense Administration today revealed that bomb shelters tested in Tuesday's atomic explosions at nearby Yucca Flats stood up under the concussion and pounding of the bomb, even though only a quarter of a mile away.
And the FCCA added the heartening news that the dangers of radiation have been "grossly exaggerated in the public mind."
But the civil defense experts also learned that a home without a shelter would be lethal death trap in an atomic attack.
Meanwhile, Val Peterson, civil defense director, hurried back to Washington to report on the test to President Eisenhower. What he and his assistants learned at Yucca Flats suggested a necessity for re-evaluating the entire civil defense program, Peterson said.

Twenty-Two Sealed Human Guinea Pigs Are Out Today

U. S. SUBMARINE BASE, New London, Conn. Mar. 19 (UP)—Twenty-three human guinea pigs who have lived aboard a sealed dockside submarine for two months climb out of the hatch of the U. S. S. Haddock today for their first look at the sky since Jan. 19.
The Navy's big atomic age experiment, "Operation Hideout," will be over.
Its purpose was to determine the effects on and reactions of human beings exposed in sealed quarters over a long period of time to a high concentration of carbon dioxide.
The answers provided by the experiment, according to Navy spokesmen, will have a definite bearing on how submariners of the future will live.
The reactions of the 22 enlisted men and one officer, said Cmdr. Gerald J. Duffner, medical officer in charge of the test, "are proving that man is adaptable to almost any living condition aboard a future submarine—except one in which no cottage cheese exists."
An insatiable hunger for cottage cheese proved an unexpected development in the experiment. But the scientists who have examined the volunteers each day had a simple explanation: The high content of calcium in the cheese overcame a calcium deficiency in the men's bones, caused by heavy concentration of carbon dioxide.
Cottage cheese, they concluded, must be included in foods provided for submariners subjected to long confinement if they are to function most effectively.
When not submitting to scientific tests, the men watched television, played cards, wrote letters and slept. When they talked, it was mostly about women.
There were three married men aboard. One of them, Jack I. Smith, 19, of Springfield, Ill., left his bride of two months to join "Operation Hideout."
Although any of the men could quit whenever they wanted, none did.
"All the guys think I'm in the right place being here," said Smith. They say I need to have my head examined."
Torpedoman Roy E. Lanphear, an executive officer, found himself being tax consultant, marriage counselor, chaplain and educator.
Skipper R. E. Fawcett said the men "just naturally brought their problems to him, because they feel at ease talking with a fellow sailor."

Rescue Party Finds Wreck Of Plane

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. Mar. 19 (UP)—Rescue parties panned to a spot on the lonely Newfoundland coast today where a giant B-36 bomber crashed with 23 persons aboard, including the commander of the Rapid City, S. D., Air Force Base.
Fishermen who were first to reach the crash scene said they had recovered seven bodies. They made no mention of survivors.
Air Force spokesmen at Rapid City early today released the names of 19 men aboard the ill-fated plane and said the Air Force considered them "missing."
The public information officer at the Rapid City base said one of the passengers aboard the bomber was Brig. Gen. Richard E. Ellsworth, 41, commanding officer at the base. The ship was from the 28th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing based at Rapid City and was en route home from Lajes Air Force Base in the Azores on a routine training mission.
Air Force officials said a full list of those aboard the bomber would be released after relatives are notified, probably late today or Friday. The pilot was identified as Capt. Jacob Pruett Jr., whose wife lives at Rapid City.
The $3,500,000 bomber crashed near Trinity Bay on the east coast of Newfoundland after reporting by radio that two engines had failed. A B-36 is built with six engines, although some models in addition have four auxiliary jet engines.
The Royal Canadian Air Force sent two rescue experts to parachute to the crash scene near the fishing village of Burgoyne Cove. Three ground parties also were dispatched.
Townpeople at Burgoyne Cove said the huge bomber was first seen unusually low and apparently was having engine trouble. Later, fishermen from Randon Island in Trinity Bay reported they had found seven bodies in the wreckage of the plane.
Air Force officials at Rapid City said the plane was off at a B-36 task force that left the base last week on an ocean-hopping training mission.
Ellsworth, a native of Erie, Pa., had been in command at Rapid City since November, 1950.

Thirty-Five Apply For Scholarships

Thirty-five graduating high school seniors have made application for nursing scholarships to attend Murray State College this fall. Fifty scholarships have been made available through the cooperation of Jennie Stuart Memorial Hospital of Hopkinsville and the Owensboro-Daviess County Hospital of Owensboro.
Any high school senior, either boy or girl, who wishes to make application for a nursing scholarship should contact Ellis Henson, director of field services at Murray State College.
All applicants must, before they are accepted, present themselves for personal interviews by either Miss Nadine Branson, director of nursing education at the Owensboro hospital, or Miss Ruth Coppedge, director of nurses at the Hopkinsville hospital.
Miss Coppedge and Miss Branson will be at Murray State College April 10 and applicants can arrange for interviews at that time.
The nursing scholarships provide for all expenses during the three-year training program, with the exception of meals while at Murray State College. Included in the scholarships are room, books and all fees.
The three-year program is set up for three semesters at Murray State, beginning this fall and carrying through the fall semester of 1954. The remaining time is spent in clinical experience at the hospital of the student's choice.
The Nursing Education department at Murray State, under the direction of Miss Mary Alice Harris, is fully accredited by the Kentucky State Board of Nurse Examiners and the National League for Nursing.

Who Wants a Day Off?

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (UP)—Rep. Allan Oakley Hunter (R-Calif.), said employees of the District of Columbia had a hard time figuring out this directive from the city commissioners:
"The second non-work day of the calendar week is hereby established as the regular non-work day in lieu of Sunday for the purposes of this sub-section except that the first non-work day of the calendar week is hereby established as the regular weekly non-work day in lieu of Sunday for the uniformed force of the fire departments."

DRIVER BALKS, MAYOR FIRES GAS

Saul Goldstone... "I was never in such pain in my life." Mayor Wilford... "you use whatever force is necessary."

DOCTORS ARE ATTEMPTING to save sight of Saul Goldstone, 35, who caught a blast of tear gas in the face in Bedford Heights, O., Cleveland suburb, from a tear gas gun wielded by Bedford Heights Mayor Robert E. Wilford, 30. Goldstone's expensive auto was stopped by police who had driven ahead to stop another car. Given a speeding ticket, he said he wouldn't appear, and when police told him they would take him in, he said he locked himself in his car. The mayor, who was with the police, said he fired the tear gas because Goldstone wouldn't accompany police to the station. (International)

Get Money For Each Allied Plane That Is Shot Down

BERLIN, Mar. 19 (UP)—Russia reported today to have offered a reward of 25,000 rubles to Soviet or satellite pilots who force down Western Allied fighters, or bombers over Communist territory.
Sources close to the Soviet Communist Commission said orders had been received from Moscow for Soviet and satellite pilots to force down all Western Allied military aircraft which stray over Communist territory.
The stern Soviet orders were said to have been issued in retaliation for the detention by the West of a Russian-built MIG-15 which was flown to Denmark by a Polish pilot seeking political asylum.
The offer of rewards and the order to force down Western military aircraft, these sources said, may explain recent Soviet and Czechoslovak attacks on British and American planes in which an American jet fighter and a British bomber have been shot down.
While there is no official exchange between the ruble and the U. S. dollar the Soviet reward for forcing down Western Allied planes would amount to about $6,250 at the Soviet valuation of the ruble.
The sources who reported the reward offer and the Moscow order said the Soviets were bitter over Denmark's refusal to immediately return the MIG to Poland. It was the first of the sleek, super-sonic Russian fighters to fall intact into Western hands.
The Polish pilot, Franciszek Garguch, 21, has been granted political asylum and has been spirited out of Denmark to an undisclosed refuge in the West.
Sources close to the Soviet Communist Commission said it was believed the British and American planes were shot down due to an "excess of zeal" by Communist pilots seeking to collect the Moscow reward.
Earlier today the United States Air Force warned that all unidentified planes flying over the American zone of Germany would be intercepted.
They disclosed that vapor trails from unidentified aircraft were seen over or near an air base in southern Greenland last week.

Heinkel Sees Egypt
As Air Power

CAIRO, Mar. 18 (UP)—Germany's foremost aviation designer, Prof. Ernst Heinkel, who presided over the 1947-48 Berlin Airlift, said today that Egypt is destined to become an important air power.

Heinkel, who is now in Egypt, said that the country's strategic position in the Middle East, its abundant supply of oil, and its excellent air bases, make it a natural center for air power. He said that Egypt's air force is now being built up, and that it will be a major factor in the region's defense.

First Round Of State Tournament Ends With Caverna And Hazard Ready For Second Try

LEXINGTON, Mar. 18 (UP)—Ralph Diersey's free-wheeling Caverna Colonels and a tournament dunkster, the Hazard Bulldogs, waited for a second round meeting today after coming up with second half spurts last night.

The second and longest day of the 1953 state high school basketball tournament began at 9 a.m. today.

Today's games had Shelbyville vs. Owensboro, Senior Ashland against Paducah Tilghman, Clay County against Georgetown, and Hazard vs. Hazard. Hazard, which was a 17-15 quarter lead, stretched it to 35-20 at intermission and had opened up a 50-36 bulge after three periods. Thirteen persons were called in the first period.

Kenny Sidwell, a 6-10 junior playmaker, tossed in 18 for Caverna. Bill Knapp had 11 to lead Paducah. Tilghman's lead guard, Jim Burks, fouled out. The Caverna five held a 17-15 quarter lead, stretched it to 35-20 at intermission and had opened up a 50-36 bulge after three periods. Thirteen persons were called in the first period.

Carlos Irwin, who paced Breckinridge all season, had 22; Hazard's John Bowling had 14. It was hardly fought all the way with Hazard on top from the last minute of the first period until the last minute of the third quarter.

Breckinridge moved ahead 37-35 at the end of the third quarter, but it was tied moments later and with two minutes left, knotted 46-46. Breckinridge managed three points on free throws but the Hazard Bulldogs tossed in a pair of field goals and five foul tosses.

A crowd of 11,000, believed to be a new tournament record, watched both games last night. The two first-night winners play each other Friday afternoon in the quarter-finals.

The Reluctant Cinderella

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX
CAROL went downstairs from Julie's room. The thickest little man was still pacing restlessly in the study and again Carol felt a strong sense of compassion for him. She paused in the doorway. "You think they'll be all right, Mr. Gallet?"

"He'll be the cigar he'd just begun to smoke out of his mouth and came towards her. "Yes, she'll be all right this time. But the next time and the next?"

"You think they—whoever they are—will try it again, Mr. Gallet?" she asked. "Who are they?"

"I've just heard about Julie. I had—He broke off as the doorbell rang.

"Who's that?" he called sharply into the hall.

Jason came down the passage and stood beside Carol.

"I've just heard about Julie. I want to know what actually happened," he said.

Ben took the cigar out of his mouth again and stared at him. "What are you doing back here?"

"I thought you'd cleared out of the state," he said.

Jason gave him a slight grin. "I don't clear out as easily as that. How is she?"

"She's okay. It was concussion, but only slight. But she isn't well enough to see you," he added rudely.

"As it happens, I wanted to talk to you," Jason said.

"Yes?" The cigar was burning between Ben's fingers; he hadn't put it back into his mouth. "You didn't seem to want to talk to me before you left."

"Your wife is a good friend of mine. Was it an accident?"

Ben put the cigar back into his mouth and started smoking furiously. "What has it to do with you?"

"Because I was with your wife in the garden at the Breakers last night," Jason said.

Ben almost spat the cigar out of his mouth.

"A lover's rendezvous, and you tell me there's nothing between you, you—"

Carol saw Jason's lean body stiffen. "That won't help any of us, Mr. Gallet. Your wife met me to find out for me. It had to do with my aunt-by-marriage, Thelma Felton."

Ben was looking at him oddly now. "I think I can guess what this was," he said presently in a calmer voice. "Who knew Julie was meeting you out there?"

"I knew," Carol murmured.

Ben nodded. "So that's how you knew where to look for her. How was the rendezvous made?"

"Julie telephoned my apartment."

"Telephoned? I've thought for some time these wires were being tapped. I've warned Julie, but the kid seemed determined to put her head into a noose. He was pacing up and down the room again in nervous, angry strides."

"Then it wasn't an accident?" Jason said.

"Someone came up and hit the kid on the back of the head. She says the thing looked like a gunk," he said briefly.

Jason nodded. "That's why I came. What I want to tell you. After I left Julie, I was standing outside in the darkness where a number of the guests' cars were parked. One unique had its engine running. I was wondering what the heck the fellow who started it was doing when two men came towards me. One was being helped along, a misshapen creature. In the darkness he looked like an ape, but something about him struck me as familiar. I stepped closer and recognized him even before I saw that heavy cane in his hand. The same cane that had knocked me out last Sunday. Then he was in a school chair, but it seems on occasion he can walk."

"Where did this attack on you occur?" Ben asked sharply.

"In Maxie Rosenthal's house," Jason said.

Ben made no comment. Carol didn't believe the information had surprised him. He continued pacing up and down, and finally he turned towards Jason.

"Since you haven't left the state, why did you clear out of here?" he asked.

"I didn't want to get Julie in Dutch with anyone."

Ben waved that aside. "You'd better stick around. You may be able to help."

Later Jason drove Carol home in the white Jaguar. They drove along the coast slowly. Carol was worrying about Jason being back in the Gallet home.

"You think Maxie instigated that attack on Julie?" she asked.

"Ben thinks so, anyway. He's a queer little guy, but I think he's genuinely crazy about Julie."

"I'm sure he is." She told him how Ben had reacted when he had seen Julie lying unconscious the night before. "But since he's one of Maxie's boys, why should Maxie want to harm his wife?" she asked.

Jason thought a moment before he said, "I think Julie has been trying to get Ben out of the racket. But Ben's too useful to Maxie. Maxie's the big front of the organization, but Ben's the brains behind it. Maxie knows that if he lets Ben get away, the whole thing may collapse. He knows, too, that Ben has told Julie something about him—something that would get him a long stretch in the penitentiary, if not a walk to the electric chair."

Ben said he told Julie for her own protection. If anything happened to him, she could use the information to see that she got her fair share of the money that was coming in. But it was dangerous information, too dangerous for Julie. Somehow she let Maxie know she knew. Evidently—but women seem to like to feel their power, no matter who the man is. I gather Maxie would like to get rid of her, but conveniently, so that Ben wouldn't think the big boss had a hand in it. Once the brakes of the car unaccountably failed, another time the steering gear jammed, things that could be explained in a natural way—accidental death. Like the falling coconut."

He shrugged. "It may force his hand. I think that's one reason Ben asked me to stay on. After this last attack on Julie, Ben's determined to find out who's behind it all. I gather he thinks I may be able to help."

She glanced sharply at his profile and again she felt that sickening sense of fear for him.

Fish Find Girl's Hair Irresistible

PROVO, Utah, Mar. (UP)—A local lass accustomed to wearing her hair long is cutting it short this year — to please local fishermen.

It all started last summer when a Provo angler noticed that Nan S. Eccles' hair was a rich mixture of copper and gold. He persuaded her to clip off a lock of hair and he used it to make a fishing fly. The fish couldn't stay away from the lure and he caught a lot, including an eight-pounder.

The fame of her hair soon spread, and all the local fishermen are asking for locks of it to use on fishing flies.

Lunches Provided For Many School Children In State

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The mid-day school lunch program in Kentucky benefited 204,000 school children for the last school year—more than three and a half times the number benefited in 1943-44 when the program was started, the State Department of Education disclosed today. That year 58,000 children participated.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler said the number of meals served last year was an increase of 314 per cent over the first year. The jump was from 7,000,000 to 32,100,000. The percentage of meals with milk last year was 91.5 per cent.

A lunch complete with milk, known as Type A, is one which provides from a third to a half of a child's daily nutritional needs.

Butler estimated the cost of the school lunch program in Kentucky last year at $10,100,000—of which about $3,000,000 came from the federal government, in the form of either cash or commodities. State and local governments and private groups provided $800,000 and $6,300,000 came from parents of participating children.

Murray Girl Scouts Observe Juliette Low Day At Party

One hundred Girl Scouts observed Juliette Low day last Thursday by participating in a World Day program that reviewed the activities of scouting in other lands. This occasion marked the 41 birthday of scouting which was founded by Juliette Low.

Mrs. Gingles Wallis, chairman of the program, opened the event with appropriate remarks and introduced the leaders of the troops.

Each troop contributed to the Juliette Low fund and made the total approximately $36.00. This fund will be used in contributing to the International program of Girl Scouts.

Thirteen troops were included in the program Thursday, one girl from each group representing a nation in dress and report: England, China, Mexico, India, Holland, Ireland, France, Switzerland, Scotland, Spain, Italy and the United States were among the countries represented.

North Murray Club Meets In Home Of Mrs. Will Rose

The North Murray Homemakers met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Will Rose with 19 members and three visitors. Mrs. Hugh Waldrop, Mrs. Allen Rose, and Mrs. Logan, a sister of Mrs. Carl King, were present.

Miss Alta Fay Andrus, a senior of the Training School, gave a talk on "Homemaking in the High School." Mrs. A. G. Outland read the devotion on "The Happiness of Generosity."

Mrs. Gingles presented the major lesson on "Furniture Arrangement." She said in every successful room the arrangement of the furniture plays as much a part in its success as the choice of color and pattern, its accessories and the style of furnishings. With proper choice of backgrounds, the arrangement of furniture can affect the apparent size and shape of the room, its livability and usefulness, its charm and character, and its center of interest.

Mrs. Gingles said a small room appears a great deal smaller than it really is, when it is cluttered by many pieces of furniture sitting at angles informally. A long narrow room can be made to appear much shorter and broader by emphasizing the short walls with an outstanding group of furniture. This brings the walls up and in and makes them seem closer. Likewise, a square room can be made to appear rectangular in shape if the larger or more interesting groups are on opposite walls.

Landscaping and gardening notes were given by Mrs. Earl Miller.

ASIA IN REVOLUTION, SAYS ADLAI

ASIA IS in a state of revolution and the west must "recognize and respect the nationalism stirring among Asiatic peoples," Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee, tells reporters in Tokyo during a stop on his world tour. At right is Robert Murphy, U. S. ambassador to Japan. Stevenson warns that the Communists are seeking to "impose their own label on the multiple revolution going on in Asia," and urged a "community of Pacific nations."
